

The burndown graph shows a lot of progress being made on the last day. However, as a result of having midterms and assignments many of us forgot to mark our tasks as completed. In reality our progress was spread out throughout the sprint. Comparing the velocity for this sprint and the previous is an inaccurate representation of the work our group performed (Sprint didn't start).